The 6th International Congress on Precision Machining ICPM 2011

Hosted by: Liverpool John Moores University, 13th to 15th September 2011
Organised by the General Engineering Research Institute (GERI),
Faculty of Technology and Environment, LJMU www.ljmu.ac.uk/icpm2011

Congress History

The International Congress of Precision Machining [ICPM] was established in 2001 in response to the increased necessity for ever greater precision in manufacturing production. The Congress originated out of a common agreement between universities of the Czech Republic.

Congress Venue

The event will be held at the Adelphi Hotel, central Liverpool, in close proximity to the University and all amenities.

Congress Themes

The Congress will focus on the following subject areas: advanced manufacturing technologies; ecological aspects of machining; micro- and nano-technologies; machining, machines, tools; metrology and quality control; process monitoring/control; non-conventional machining processes; measurement and analysis of surface quality and integrity; production optimization and economy; adaptive and intelligent control systems; process modelling and simulation; management and organization for quality assurance; Laser manufacturing.
